An amazing place for faculty
The University of California, Los Angeles is an institution that is firmly rooted in its land-grant mission of teaching, research, and public service. The campus community is committed to discovery and innovation, creative and collaborative achievements, debate and critical inquiry, in an open and inclusive environment that nurtures the growth and development of all faculty, students, administration and staff. These Principles of Community are vital for ensuring a welcoming and inclusive environment for all members of the campus community and for serving as a guide for our personal and collective behavior.

- We believe that diversity is critical to maintaining excellence in all of our endeavors.
- We seek to foster open-mindedness, understanding, compassion and inclusiveness among individuals and groups.
- We are committed to ensuring freedom of expression and dialogue, in a respectful and civil manner, on the spectrum of views held by our varied and diverse campus communities.
- We value differences as well as commonalities and promote respect in personal interactions.
- We affirm our responsibility for creating and fostering a respectful, cooperative, equitable and civil campus environment for our diverse campus communities.
- We strive to build a community of learning and fairness marked by mutual respect.
- We do not tolerate acts of discrimination, harassment, profiling or other conduct causing harm to individuals on the basis of expression of race, color, ethnicity, gender, age, disability, religious beliefs, political preference, sexual orientation, gender identity, citizenship, or national origin among other personal characteristics. Such conduct violates UCLA’s Principles of Community and may result in imposition of sanctions according to campus policies governing the conduct of students, staff and faculty.
- We acknowledge that modern societies carry historical and divisive biases based on race, ethnicity, gender, age, disability, sexual orientation, and religion, and we seek to promote awareness and understanding through education and research and to mediate and resolve conflicts that arise from these biases in our communities.
and the most culturally diverse campus in the nation. It was recognized as one of the “New Ivies” by Newsweek, whose ranking placed UCLA on equal academic footing with prestigious Ivy League schools. Enhancing our excellence through diversity is one of UCLA’s top goals. In particular we seek to increase the diversity of our faculty to meet the needs of an increasingly multiethnic student body.

UCLA is a public university that attracts, challenges and empowers outstanding students and faculty to collaborate in teaching, research and the creation of knowledge across an astounding range of inquiry and disciplines. At UCLA, multiple departments and schools occupy the top tier. Thirty-one academic departments rank among the top 20 in their fields, 13 among the top 10. Excellence resides across the board. Medicine, nursing, health care, law, economics, languages, theater, TV, film, science, education, and more. It is an accomplishment very few universities attain.

With 44,000 faculty and students, UCLA is the largest university in the state of California. Through its big front door, it has educated more students than any other college in the state—nearly one in every 101 Californians has earned a degree here.

Its size is part of UCLA’s essence, part of its promise. 27,941 undergraduates and 13,400 graduate students drawn from 87 countries and 42 states. 4,000 faculty. 11 professional schools. 5,000 courses taught. 109 academic departments. 129 undergraduate majors and 126 graduate programs. 800 student organizations. UCLA’s size means that diversity is more than an ideal. It is a vibrant reality. Opportunity and possibility? Boundless.
The many intersections between academic and personal obligations sometimes require institutional support or access to information. We provide information about and connection to resources for dual academic career hiring, childcare, housing, schooling and other work/life issues.

UCLA resides in a village of 60,000 students, faculty, and staff. And they’re all focused on one thing—making UCLA the richest intellectual and cultural environment possible.

Right in the middle of this elite public university is an astonishing concentration of world-class events, venues and happenings. Dance, drama, music, sculpture and art, museums, architectural gems, film festivals, lectures, special exhibitions, and sports—even a planetarium—all open to the public.

As the leading arts and cultural center in the West, UCLA presents 1,000 events annually and attracts 500,000 art enthusiasts. As the keeper of the world’s largest university-based film and TV archive, UCLA screens films and retrospectives from a singular body of American and international work. As one of the most storied programs in NCAA athletics, UCLA continues to showcase some of the finest performances in college sports.

Yet the marquee attraction is the campus itself. Climate from the Mediterranean, eucalyptus from Australia, inspiration from everywhere. This 419-acre garden environment is as inviting a place to visit as it is for distinguished scholars and students to live, work, and re-imagine the world around us.

The diversity of the people of California has been the source of innovative ideas and creative accomplishments throughout the state's history into the present. Diversity—a defining feature of California's past, present, and future—refers to the variety of personal experiences, values, and worldviews that arise from differences of culture and circumstance. Such differences include race, ethnicity, gender, age, religion, language, abilities/disabilities, sexual orientation, gender identity, socioeconomic status, and geographic region, and more.

Because the core mission of the University of California is to serve the interests of the State of California, it must seek to achieve diversity among its student bodies and among its employees. The State of California has a compelling interest in making sure that people from all backgrounds perceive that access to the University is possible for talented students, staff, and faculty from all groups. The knowledge that the University of California is open to qualified students from all groups, and thus serves all parts of the community equitably, helps sustain the social fabric of the State.

Diversity should also be integral to the University's achievement of excellence. Diversity can enhance the ability of the University to accomplish its academic mission. Diversity aims to broaden and deepen both the educational experience and the scholarly environment, as students and faculty learn to interact effectively with each other, preparing them to participate in an increasingly complex and pluralistic society. Ideas, and practices based on those ideas, can be made richer by the process of being born and nurtured in a diverse community. The pluralistic university can model a process of proposing and testing ideas through respectful, civil communication. Educational excellence that truly incorporates diversity thus can promote mutual respect and make possible the full, effective use of the talents and abilities of all to foster innovation and train future leadership.

Therefore, the University of California renews its commitment to the full realization of its historic promise to recognize and nurture merit, talent, and achievement by supporting diversity and equal opportunity in its education, services, and administration, as well as research and creative activity. The University particularly acknowledges the acute need to remove barriers to the recruitment, retention, and advancement of talented students, faculty, and staff from historically excluded populations who are currently underrepresented.
